Do not wear yourself out to get rich

Proverbs 23:4

"What is your greatest concern currently?" Well, most people would say it's their finances if we were to put the above question to them today.

Indeed, everyone can feel the pressure from the World Bank statement that the world is in danger of heading towards a state of crisis with the double whammy of high inflation rates and low growth rates looming over our heads at the same time. Now, none of us can live unscathed in a post-pandemic world ahead. Even as steep rises in fuel and food prices continue to challenge governments and businesses alike across the globe, those with lower incomes would be bearing the brunt from these tough times in their daily lives, with social unrest waiting to unfold in the next change.

Many among us may feel that making more money would help us avoid being caught in a poverty trap as prices seem to head for the skies with each passing day. While it is only human to look towards greater wealth, especially in such times, one could end up overwhelmed by more worries and anxieties if they choose to anchor their lives to achieve "financial independence".

Proverbs 23:4 calls out, "Do not wear yourself out to get rich!" Our own vulnerabilities are laid bare by these financial problems even as they remind us to become more dependent on His provisions. It is important, therefore, for us to resist going along the flow; instead, we are to heighten our vigilance against playing slaves to monetary desires. Indeed, the current situation provides a good opportunity to learn living a simple life.

We see how Mary showed the way in Luke 10:41-42 by choosing the good part, rather than getting herself "distracted by what is happening around her". This has enabled her remove the fear to compete with others in her inner heart and enter into a state of calmness in her life. Indeed, when one gets that 'one thing', everything else will fall into place.

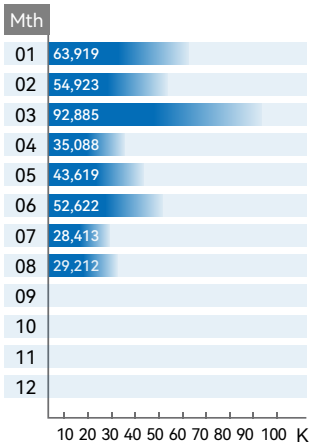

Difficult as life might be, on no account should anyone give up hope under any circumstances, however adverse these may turn out to be. Learn to lean upon the Lord to restore your being and lead a healthy lifestyle. We welcome you to share your inner hearts and your invaluable experiences by emailing us at knowHIM@global-reachout.org.

Between Husband And Wife

Some people take their spouses for granted and act impatiently in the presence of the other half. Bad moods poisoning their own minds are not suppressed, resulting in breakups and untold sufferings in ruinous beliefs that the other party will not abandon the matrimonial union. Both parties should cherish the love that had brought them together, instead of dragging the family into disaster.
