Entrust to Reliable People

2 Tim 2:2

These days, the issue of succession in churches and other organizations seems to be pushing on with greater urgency than before. Deep within, we are aware that the enemy is just waiting to see ministries being derailed by missteps in the succession process. To be sure, succession is a major undertaking that does not tolerate any ifs and buts.

Apostle Paul enjoined his true spiritual son in the faith – Timothy to "… entrust to reliable people who will also be qualified to teach others…" We see Paul going beyond his dedication to bring up future generations: he is reminding Timothy to put in similar efforts and bring up new workers, too.

The expression "to entrust" carries two meanings here. First, Timothy is urged to hold firm to the responsibility that has been passed on to him. Second, he is tasked to look for reliable people who would have to be qualified to teach others (i.e., take over this mission) as well. Both transferer and transferee must possess powerful callings plus outstanding abilities throughout the process to "hold firm" and "pass on (the responsibility) to others". It is also critical for their own characters to be of the fine calibre to ensure that the mission is passed on to people who are reliable.

We see, therefore, that besides raising up young people for the way ahead, an effective succession plan calls for the setting up of a meticulously crafted process. Succession is a truly complex multi-faceted task to carry out. On one hand, it has to be done along the traditions and objectives of the organization; on the other, it has to cultivate requisite provisions tailored for the people who would be running with the baton from that point onwards. All of these are carried out with a view to creating a multi-dimensional ambience so that they would be able to wield their abilities to proactively dedicate and respond as much as possible. At the same time, encouragement must be provided for them to lean on God in every way when it comes to their own lives and ministries.

GR has always been into the process of rejuvenation all along. The exercise calls for drawn-out and relentless efforts. We look forward to working alongside you so that we can become a blessing to more people by producing programmes that cater for and move along with the generations after us.

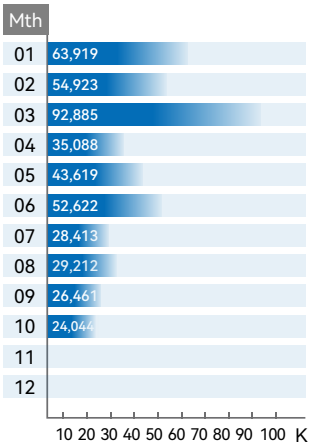

We look forwards to your feedback. Our email is at: knowHIM@global-reachout.org

A Bountiful Life For Seniors

These images crossed my mind as I watched the programmes on maintaining one's health as a senior: elderly folks not carrying out any domestic chores around the house, taking the lift and using car/bus/train each time they get out of the house. They do little walking and take three full meals if not more. Throw in tobacco and liquor and you will find yourself wondering how these folks are going to take care of their own health!? Thank God, I do my own housework, go to market to buy groceries, fresh foods to cook, or packaged cooked food to eat at home. Yes, I'm game for all of these! Here I am, a senior living a life of simple joy and health!
