Wisdom from Above

James 3:17

We are living in a VUCA era—an age marked by Volatility, Uncertainty, Complexity and Ambiguity.

This era offers us unprecedented access to information and choices, even as it brings more confusion and anxiety. Worldly wisdom urges us to predict with greater accuracy, control more tightly and adapt more aggressively, However, James points to another path: “Only wisdom that comes from above…”

Wisdom from above is not a spiritual slogan to escape from reality; it is a life-navigation system rooted in eternity, embracing seven qualities: purity, peace-loving, gentleness, mercy, good fruit, impartiality and sincerity. The right starting point sets the direction for the entire journey. Thus, we do not rush to change our behaviour today. Instead,we recalibrate our hearts—acknowledging the limits of worldly wisdom while turning towards the heavenly source where wisdom abides.

To begin with, we need to diagnose our default mode of navigation. Which of the following response patterns do we fall into when we see challenges face to face, albeit unconsciously?

1. Control-driven: anxiously trying to control everything, only to be overwhelmed by exhaustion;2. Avoidance-driven: evading problems, pretending all is normal while unease quietly builds up from within;

3. Complaint-driven: blaming others. adopting a victim mentality, forgoing the power to act;

4. Drift-driven: abandoning independent thinking, moving along with the crowd, and losing one’s sense of direction.

These responses point to our inner navigation system straying off course and needing a reset—and that begins with a humble confession: “Lord, I cannot rely on my own understanding to navigate this age.” This is not a declaration of weakness; it is the onset of freedom. Only when we let go of the illusion—that we must control everything—can we open ourselves to wisdom beyond our limited perspective. The good news: the Lord who gives wisdom has promised us: “And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age.” (Matthew 28:20)

In volatile markets, in uncertain diagnosis rooms, in complex family relationships and before blurring moral choices, His presence is the most reliable foundation in our navigation system. So, let us set out with courage. Not with the ambition to control everything, but with the humility and willingness to be moulded; not seeking quick-fix techniques, but hungering after deep life transformation. In the unpredictable ocean of VUCA, the most stable ship is not the largest one, but the one whose anchor runs deepest. May the wisdom from above become the anchor deep within our inner being.
