Shepherd's Corner

Pleasing God

(Gal 1:10)

Paul posed this question to himself on whether he was pleasing men, or God in this epistle to the Galatians. He followed up with the answer he knew too well: I would not be a servant of Christ if I blindly pleased men. We, too, are being called upon to muse on whether we are going for praise from men or truly living for God in our daily labours.

Think about this. We would run into a wall if we failed to gain acceptance from others. On the other hand, we will end up as Jonah if we try to run away from Him. Needless to say, many tasks will become much easier to handle if we get the nod and support from the people around and above us in our daily dealings, as there would be less opposition coming from that end.

However, we could be straying further and further from God, if we were to go solely after Men. While no one would doubt this Truth, it seems likely that everyone would find himself mouthing these words: "It's easier said than done"!

It all boils down to making a wise decision on who our "target of loyalty" should be. We know that going all out to win the favour of God is the primary target for every Christian. Even so, it does not mean that this can be done by putting the feelings and viewpoints of other players aside. We need wisdom and insight from High to ensure that our efforts and modus operandi are in line with the Universal Truth without compromising our core mission to spread love and respect to one and all. Indeed, God would be pleased to see such an attitude in His people, as well.

In short, it is my belief that God will certainly point the way to overcome every challenge and roadblock that the world has set up along our path when we put Him over and above all else, even our pride and ego within our hearts.

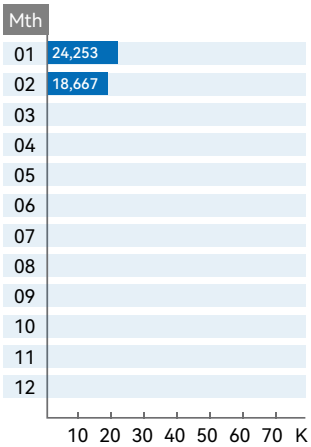

Our programmes on the workplace and family speak of our humble attempts to make the Truth and Grace come alive and work out in the real world of family and workplace. These have been sculpted to help us to identify what such efforts entail to bring more people to live out these Heavenly Truths -- and receive His Blessings as they go about their respective duties in glorifying Him at same time!

Nehemiah Effective Leadership

I love how the content has been represented. I'm a Sudanese from Nuba Mountain region. I have a vision in my heart since some years back concerning our country Sudan. Since I grew up in Sudan, I saw Sudan was in the WAR AND INTERNAL CONFLICTS within itself because of the ideology against other religious beliefs e.g Christianity. Therefore, I'm taking this responsibility of learning God-fearing Leadership, so that if possible I can teach this values.

A Team in Harmony

Eternal success can only be found in Christ as we see the workplace going through multifarious changes as Time marches on. This is because it is the Truth that sets us free as it strengthens our efforts to influence and bless others.

A New Life in Christ

More in-depth learning about our faith, knowing Him better as we achieve a clearer identity of ourselves together with our roles and duties in Christ --- all of these are raised up in well-planned steps along the way. Such seamless continuity works wonders to build upon what I have acquired on knowing our Lord, Faith and His Blessings in past episodes!
