Would Not Overstep His Command

Proverbs 8:29

GR has been working consistently to produce programmes on workplace-related topics since 2018 because we see the workplace as a huge harvest field to spread the Word. It is also a major platform for most followers to put their faith into practice.

Over the last three years, the workplace went through tremendous changes once again, coming as it did under assaults from the ruthless pandemic. Working From Home or Flexi-hours has since become the new normal for many people, even now as we enter the post-pandemic phase. Such a working model is a double-edged sword, with raised expectations of the employer even as flexi-hours are implemented at the ground. While it appears that employees are free to work at their times and venues of choice, no one can deny the fact that boundaries separating work from daily lives are getting blurred as time goes on. With access to office work no further than a handphone in your palm, it is getting increasingly difficult to resist the mindset of being at work all the time and all over the place. I believe that negative effects would certainly come to roost on our bodies and minds in the long haul. How, then, are we to respond to this challenge?

God has made everything around us in His infinite wisdom and has set boundaries that are not to be transgressed. As we respond to His Calling to meet the challenges in the current age, it is necessary for us to start out by setting up boundaries to live with a sense of self-discipline. In a season with everything changing all the time, there is every need for everyone to proactively draw up requisite boundaries for himself to live and work in. As highlighted by Henry Cloud, what you get ultimately is the interweaving of two elements: the result of what you actively lead to create, and what takes place reactively under tacit approval.

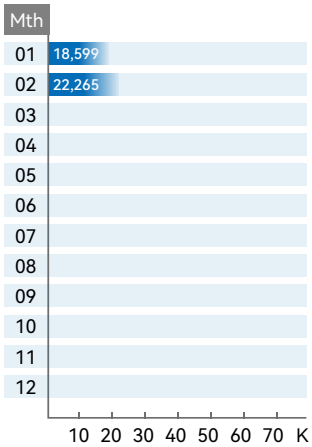

I look forward to receiving emails from our brothers and sisters to share their respective take-aways and challenges at the workplace during this period at: knowHIM@global-reachout.org

Challenges @ the Marketplace

Dr Michelle Liew provides readers with a practical blueprint for a workplace that is based on convictions/values, character and capabilities. It highlights the meaning of work and helps us to do a rethink on the value of the workplace as a piece of worthy reference and guidance to model the workplace on..

(Rev Dr Kenneth Goh, Singapore, 10/01/2023)

The "3C Principles" based on Conviction, Character and Competency is our firm foundation to meet challenges at the workplace. Wherever and whenever all three blocks integrate to become a single entity, it results in a godly workplace culture that serves to edify individuals, corporate entities and even our society in general.

(Ross Chin, New Zealand, 30/1/2023)

Happy Families

I have benefitted from the pointers on psychological health shared in the 20th episode of the programme "Bountiful Living for Seniors". I would like to know if you have anything similar on the topic of interpersonal relationships and communications? This is where my soft underbelly lies. Perhaps watching more examples might do me good. Thank you very much.

(Madam Tan, Singapore, 9/3/2023)

Genesis

The characteristics of "a life that is godly and blessed" are eternal and do not change with the passing of time. Thank you for teaching us the lessons from history.

(Sis Xiao, Singapore, 15/02/2023)

Workplace J Vaccines

An article that's short and sharp! Suits best for those busy bees at the workplace to chew upon and think about on the go!

(Joseph, USA, 20/02/2023)

This year, GR will be launching a new ministry targeting youth by broadcasting programmes purposed at transforming values and behaviour among the younger folks with a view to winning them over to Christ. May God guide our preparatory efforts in this endeavour.

We pray to the Lord to provide us with a local co-worker who is willing to go into full-time service and captain our efforts to broaden our ministry in the community. This will help GR beef up its links with churches, institutions and other members of His Body.
