A New Thing

(Isaiah 43:19)

As the new year begins and all things are renewed, we often set goals for the future even as we reflect on the past. In this season of hope, we should also ask ourselves: What new thing is God working on in our lives? Isaiah 43:18-21 offers us profound insight—God calls us to let go of the past and look forward to the new things He will bring.

This passage is a promise to the people of Israel and an encouragement to every Christian. We, too, are called upon to boldly embrace the new work God is doing in our lives and ministries, as we actively participate in it to expand His kingdom further.

God calls upon us to "forget the former things," which means we need to let go of past failures, hurts and regrets. These past experiences could mutate into stumbling blocks, preventing us from seeing the new work God is doing. Do you have unresolved issues from which you need to be released today? Are there any old habits or ways of thinking that need to be turned around?

Letting go of the past is no mean task, but God's grace is sufficient for us. We can gradually release our burdens through prayers, meditating on His Word, and sharing them with spiritual companions to move forward freely and embrace God's new plans.

God promises to "do a new thing," -- something that may exceed our imagination. In ministry, we may encounter challenges that feel like being into a state of "wilderness" or "desert," but God assures us that He will make a way in the wilderness and provide living waters in the desert. This means that even in the most trying of circumstances, He can open new paths for us, providing fresh opportunities and resources.

Are we willing to look forward in faith to the new things God is doing this new year? Are we willing to trust in His work even in seemingly impossible circumstances? God's "new thing" may come in unexpected ways; thus, we must stay sharp, and always ready to respond to His leading anytime.

A new year, a new beginning. God is doing a new thing in our lives, calling us to let go of the past and boldly embrace the future. Our team at Global Reachout (GR) has been entrusted with a great mission: to spread the Gospel and proclaim God's goodness through the new media.

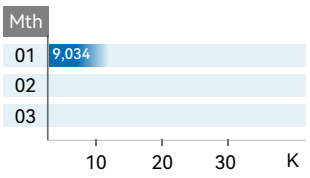

As we step into this new year, let us courageously embrace God's new work, actively participate in it, and witness together the expansion of His Kingdom on earth. May God grant us wisdom and courage, guiding us to move on steadfastly along the path that is full of challenges and opportunities.

Audience Feedback

The Thrills and Spills of Senior Life

Thank you for your sharing and inspiration! Though my body weakens with age, my heart remains youthful, still brimming with vibrant hope, and my vision is as clear as ever. My grit to serve the Lord is unwavering, despite the tears and tumbles along the way. Like the roly-poly toy, I will rise again each time I fall, upheld by the Lord's Hand. Yes, I am learning to be a joyful warrior in my later years, pressing forward until I see the Lord face to face. Just like Caleb at 85—despite his many years, his heart to serve the Lord remained young, bubbling with zest—nothing less!

Be Prepared!

I had never thought about this before, assuming there would always be plenty of time. But this episode opened my eyes to the harsh truth: one draws strength from facing life with careful preparations for the future. We need to plan to live more confidently and with greater assurance.

Wise Guidance for Youths (Ep 28)

The topic of teenage friendship is a real concern for every family, as adolescents begin to distance themselves from their parents in their journey toward greater independence. This leaves them vulnerable to peer pressures and temptations. This remarkable series is a must for parents and elders who want to strengthen their communications with their children!

A Vibrant Life 2

There's no need to push someone against the wall in life. At times, tolerance toward others is also about tolerance toward oneself. Keep up the great work!

Marketplace Master's Energy Management

This episode highlights that our work is not a solo battle—it's all about teamwork. The spirit of teamwork, therefore, should take centre stage. Thanks for sharing! I'm sure to share it with all my friends!
