Shepherd's Corner

Turn the Hearts to the Children

"He will turn the hearts of the parents to their children…" (Malachi 4:6)

With Father's Day just around the corner, it would be timely to say "Let's talk about Dad together." Now, that is the name of the new series being launched under the "Happy Family" last month. Three posers were raised on the publicity poster:

When would a guy be considered as truly good? Why has one to start as a good guy before he can proceed to becoming a good father? How does the absence of a fatherly role impact a child during his formative years?

Do you have answers to all these three questions?

Studies reveal that our children are facing a slew of psychological problems these days; many subsequent social problems could be attributed to the lack of paternal attention during their formative years. Many fathers are feeling rather helpless, even as they are becoming increasingly aware of how serious the situation is on the ground. There are even some of them who throw up their arms in despair, saying, "I simply don't know how to communicate with my kids." The upshot is that more complaints are coming from the mothers, too; there seems to be concurrence that fathers could do a little more, a little better than they had done so far.

Being a competent father is no easy task. However, this is a responsibility that is handed down from none other than God Himself. The next question is: how are fathers to take the first step? In the programme, Mr Li Hong De postulated that one needs to strive towards being a good guy before he can become a good father. This is where the crux of the issue lies.

It would be good for parents to spend some time on the 12-parter series over our website or social platforms to learn about and put firm foundations in place on how to become good guys.

Being addressed as "Father" is to be awarded the irreplaceable and gentlest address title that can be awarded to any man. It would be better for the father to turn towards the child than for the child to make the move. My point is: no father can afford to be absent during the years when his child is growing up! Time and tide wait for no "man"!

Singing Together

I enjoy listening to this programme very much. At the same time, I love to share with other brothers and sisters in Christ, even with families and friends who have yet to accept the Lord. Nuggets of wisdom and truth that are easy to take in can be found throughout the production. I love the many stories that are related to our daily lives—through these stories and songs, the minds of listeners are led to God Himself
