【 Life as usual 】

If Jesus came at this time, what would he like to see you doing? Life as usual! It doesn't mean living in a muddle – of course not! It's that we should perform our duty and commit to our work well; we need to study according to our plan and work according to our plan. It should be a true portrayal of the daily life of every Christian follower.

Just as Jeremiah urged the captives of Israel to live and work as usual (Jer. 29:4-7), we should continue to live according to God's will in this difficult time. Even if many of our plans fail to go ahead, God still uses the salt and light that we are where we are. People around us will see and be influenced by how we live and how we face the challenges of every day. Our way of life itself is ministry!

In this regard, our Balance of Life series provides many practical guidelines. We have invited the former senior manager at AT& T, sister Kong Lei Hanqing, to help you learn how to achieve balance between work, family and service. The content of sharing is substantial and diversified, from managing time each day to effectively setting and achieving goals, and cultivating healthy living habits.

Whatever the environment, we can become the salt and light for the Lord. The epidemic has affected our way of life day after day, but the meaning and mission of our lives have not changed. God gives us not only a strong spirit, but also a loving heart (2 Tim. 1:6-14). Let us all be willing to get ourselves up, live for God's glory, and be God's response to this era.

You are welcome to share your learning achievements with us. Please email to: knowHIM@global -reachout.org.

Pray for the children of this generation. As parents, we put them into God's hands every day and lead them to establish a relationship with the father in person. We can't be with them forever, only the Father can. (Sister Pan, Singapore, 8/7)
