Shepherd's Corner

Be Christ's Ambassadors

(2 Cor 5:20)

Christians have a unique role to play at workplace in the world of today -- one that is saturated with disharmony and changes. Every workplace Christian can carry out in-situ mission by way of "value guidance" to spread the message of Truth in ways that are invisible and invaluable! Imagine a Christian at the workplace or some commercial sector who is not purely mindful on personal gains and losses, but running a successful career and takes pride in and infuses Christian values into the marketplace.

He would certainly be working towards good relationships with colleagues while holding to principles of integrity, righteousness and mutual respect, in his bearing as well as in carrying out his official duties. And yes, he would be giving of his best to work towards achieving a wonderful life in the present and future, by living out the message on love and Truth of Christ to those around by way of words and actions, too!

This brings us to the calling in 2 Cor 5:20 to hold on to our identity of "Christ's ambassadors" no matter what situation we may find ourselves in. Such an identity embraces the mission to spread the Gospel and shoulder the responsibility to reconcile man with God without fail. It is for this reason that we are to set our sights to glorify God in our trade and the position we are in. In practice, this is done through "value guidance" by building up an environment that is conducive to such reconciliation in our missionary efforts to spread the Word at our respective workstations.

Sacred as the mission to reconcile man with God at the workplace is, it comes with lots of challenges, too. Indeed, it is a commitment to be engraved onto our hearts and minds! We are prepared to walk alongside our brothers and sisters in this hallowed journey at GR, flesh out the message of workplace mission with our lives and even equip them with the faith, dedication and fervour in response to the Call to become "Christ's ambassadors."

May we respond in unison to this glorious Call, so that all workplace workers can feel the true and glorious God in what we say and do as we offer our witness in truth and joy. Great as the challenges may be, we are of the firm belief that God will hold His children in His Presence and show them the right way to go.
